

Dual degree Executive MBA in partnership with the Fox School of Business at Temple University

December 15, 2009

After three years of strategic partnership with The Fox School of Business at Temple University in Philadelphia (USA), the ENPC School of International Management in Paris now offers a new international Executive MBA which will award graduates a degree from each institution with two accreditations: AMBA and AACSB.

The ENPC/Fox Executive MBA - a life changing experience

Our Executive MBA is an experience that will help you achieve major career advancements and have a major impact on your personal development.

Our strengths:

- location in the heart of Paris
- affiliation with Ecole des ponts and ParisTech
- alumni network of both schools (58,000 members worldwide)
- small intake ensuring a high level of interaction between participants and faculty
- large pool of internationally renowned professors.

The program offers you:

- an internationally recognized MBA from prestigious institutions in both Europe and the USA
- the combination of ENPC and Fox School faculty
- two international accreditations (AMBA and AACSB)
- an inter-disciplinary and multi-cultural learning environment
- a mix of soft and hard management skills, essential for succeeding in today's business life

Our key principles – value-based global leadership, diversity and integration

Our approach is based on our philosophy of value-based global leadership and on our belief of enrichment through diversity and integration. For this reason, in all courses we use actual case studies on international and European companies; we make participants familiar with different perspectives on business issues, and we emphasize creativity and innovation as well as real-world applications.

The program uses an interactive, discussion-based pedagogy that leverages the variety of industry sectors, business experiences, and domain expertise represented by both the faculty and participants. One full track is dedicated to the integration of the themes and perspectives covered during the program.